

Financial Disclosure

The Academy's Board of Trustees has determined that a financial relationship should not restrict expert scientific, clinical, or nonclinical presentation or publication, provided that appropriate disclosure of such relationship is made. As an Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) accredited provider of CME, the Academy seeks to ensure balance, independence, objectivity, and scientific rigor in all individual or jointly sponsored CME activities.

All contributors to Academy educational activities must disclose any and all financial relationships (defined below) to the Academy annually. The ACCME requires the Academy to disclose the following to participants prior to the activity:

- any known financial relationships a meeting presenter, author, contributor, or reviewer has reported with any manufacturers of commercial products or providers of commercial services within the past 12 months
- any meeting presenter, author, contributor, or reviewer (hereafter referred to as "the Contributor") who report they have no known financial relationships to disclose

For purposes of this disclosure, a known financial relationship is defined as any financial gain or expectancy of financial gain brought to the Contributor or the Contributor's family, business partners, or employer by:

- direct or indirect commission;
- ownership of stock in the producing company;
- stock options and/or warrants in the producing company, even if they have not been exercised or they are not currently exercisable;
- financial support or funding from third parties, including research support from government agencies (e.g., NIH), device manufacturers, and/or pharmaceutical companies; or
- involvement in any for-profit corporation where the Contributor or the Contributor's family is a director or recipient of a grant from said entity, including consultant fees, honoraria, and funded travel.

The term "family" as used above shall mean a spouse, domestic partner, parent, child or spouse of a child, or a brother, sister, or spouse of a brother or sister, of the Contributor.
