Fact Sheet

About

The American Academy of Ophthalmology Truhlsen-Marmor Museum of the Eye® is the world's only free, public museum dedicated to the science of sight. Drawing on a collection of 38,000 objects, the museum features rare books, instruments and immersive educational materials. A walk through of the four galleries includes interactive, hands-on experiences such as virtual reality headsets, touchable models and screens, and several "try it yourself" moments.

Visitors will:

- Learn about the latest innovations saving sight today
- See the evolution of eye care through the ages
- Dive deeper into the historical collection of artifacts
- Develop an interest in the study of medicine and ophthalmology

Public Programs

Join us for hands-on activities, workshops, lectures, and demonstrations held at the museum. The museum partners with various health organizations, researchers, historians, and innovators to host free programs educating the public on the latest discoveries and developments in eye health.

Parking/Getting There

The museum is located in San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf, accessible through public transportation with the F Muni line. The museum does not have any designated parking. However, there are several available garages nearby in the Fisherman's Wharf neighborhood.
